

ALL ENERGY IS BENT TO CRUSH SLAVS

ALL ATTENTION IS NOW CENTERED UPON GIGANTIC OPERATIONS AT EASTERN FRONT.

BIG CAMPAIGN OF WAR

German Millions Are Employed to Deliver Death Blow to Russians at Every Point of Contact.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 19.—Attention is now centered on the gigantic operations in the eastern field of war where fighting is in full swing in nearly every section of the Russian line from the Baltic to the Danister.

General Von Buelow who was on the left of General Von Kluck, in the invasion of France, now commands the extreme left of the German advance toward Riga, which is being conducted by cavalry on a scale exceeding anything heretofore during the war. Berlin claims a steady advance and Petrograd concedes an advance after the Russian forces had fought a stubborn contest.

On Von Buelow's right is General Von Eichhorn who is being held up by the Russian fortress, Ostrowitz. On Von Eichhorn's right is General Von Gallwitz whose name appears for the first time in large operations. After capturing Praszysz, he is now pressing a German attack on the Narwa river and its tributaries.

Movement on Lublin.

On the Rawa and the Bzura lines there is comparative quiet which is also reflected on the south side of Warsaw, but on the southeast the movement against Lublin which was temporarily checked is again in full swing.

The Russians must fight a defensive battle for the possession of Warsaw and the city is being heavily shelled. The German forces are considered undoubtedly to prefer the first issue, hence the Russians, in the opinion of many military observers, are likely to attempt a complete withdrawal with their armies intact.

These tremendous activities by the Germans in the east, suggest that they have little reserve left to devote to the western campaign which offers the entente allies a respite, either for the completion of munition supplies, or a concerted attempt to recapture Lille.

Dardanelle Casualties.

The total casualties of the Dardanelles expeditionary force to date in killed, wounded and missing have been 42,434, officers and men, Premier Asquith told the house of commons today. The total includes both naval and military branches of the service.

MAY SOLVE MYSTERY OF THE AXE MURDERS

Confession of Man at Buffalo, N. Y., to Tragedy at Blue Island, Ill., Leads to Conjectures.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, July 19.—Police of a number of cities today delved into records of mysterious murders, while two Chicago detectives and Mayor Jones, of Blue Island, Ill., left for Buffalo to bring back Cassimir Ariszewski, who is said to have confessed to the murder of Jacob Mischik, his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Mary Mansfield, and her baby, Mary Mansfield, in Blue Island July 3, 1914. Ariszewski was a boarder at the Mischik thaps and he told the Buffalo police he waited until the family was asleep and then killed his victims with an ax.

The similarity of the series of ax murders which began four years ago in Colorado Springs, stretched across the continent to Ellsworth, Kansas, to Monmouth, Ill., then to Zionsville, Iowa, and east to Boston, lead the police to believe that perhaps one man was responsible for all the crimes. The murder of the four persons in Blue Island, Ill., in 1914, brought the total number of victims to 31.

All the murders were committed by a man who used an ax and the crimes were all the work of a man who virtually left no clue behind. In each instance he waited until the persons were asleep.

WANT PARCEL POST TO INCLUDE PHOTOGRAPHS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Indianapolis, July 19.—Two thousand photographers who met here today in the first session of the thirty-fifth convention of the Photographers Association of America, announced it as their intention to work for a more liberal application of the parcel post to include photographs. Representatives of the photographers declared that there was no adequate reason why photographs should not be sent at the lower rate.

Second, only to the fight for the parcel post was the effort to start a movement towards a change of the copyright laws as applied to photography. The camera men and women were for a law that will allow them to copyright all the negatives of one sitting for one fee. This measure would protect the work of reputable and high grade photographers, they explained.

"Supposed negatives are taken," explained a photographer, "unless all six are copyrighted, the subject can lay a proof from one of them and have it reproduced by a cheap man."

Women form a large percentage of the delegates.

LYDD-GEORGE PLANS TO END COAL STRIKE

BRITISH MINISTER OF MUNITIONS TAKES HAND IN WELSH LABOR TROUBLE.

MEET MINERS TONIGHT

Prospects of a Settlement are Reported More Probable in Light of Latest Developments.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 19.—David Lloyd-George, minister of munitions, has at last taken a hand in the south Wales coal strike and announced his intention of going to Cardiff tonight to have a talk with the men. This announcement was made shortly after it became known that new proposals had been advanced which apparently offered good prospects of settling the strike.

Sir Lloyd-George is very popular with the miners and it is thought a direct appeal from him will have a greater effect than any other influence.

A conference between the executive committee of the miners and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trades, has been arranged for tonight but was made unnecessary by action of Lloyd-George. The meeting has been cancelled although some members of the executive committee already started from Cardiff for London when Mr. Lloyd-George's intention was announced.

London, July 19.—Reports from the South Wales coal fields indicate no progress in the negotiations for the ending of the strike, but efforts will be made in the cabinet meeting today to find some means of speedily solving the labor problem. It is generally believed in the mining districts, however, that no satisfactory way out of the present difficulties can be found unless the government takes over the mines and operates them during the strike.

One of the first things the miners demand is the withdrawal of the proclamation which brings them under the provision of the munitions bills. The present idea of working under coercion and insist they will not consent to it.

It is known that representatives of the government are in conversation with the spirit of the miners and a gloomy view of the present situation, but if the proclamation is withdrawn the government takes over the mines, it is possible the men may be prevailed upon to work for the state on satisfactory terms. The idea of an agrarianization would thus be eliminated.

The mine owners are alarmed at the great expense to which they are being put in addition to the loss of profit. Their expense is estimated at $100,000.

The suggestion is made by Thomas Richard, member of parliament and leader of the South Wales federation, that the men be allowed to go back to work on their own terms, negotiations for a settlement to be resumed while the work is proceeding.

BALTIC NAVAL BASE IMPORTANT TO SLAV IN LATEST CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., July 19.—"In Reval, the remaining Russian naval station upon the Baltic Sea, the Tsar possesses a strong, convenient war harbor doubly protected by its doubly indented bay and by its position upon the narrow of the Gulf of Finland," says a study in the geography of Europe's great war recently prepared by the National Geographic Society at Washington. The statement continues:

"The development of Reval as a great naval base is a matter of recent years. Reval has always been more or less fortified, but its present formidable works date from the decision of the Russian admiralty that Libau was too near the German border to be dependable as the first naval base of the Empire upon the Baltic. Libau was maintained as an important base; its defenses were made as strong as possible; its shipyards and military factories were built up; but Reval, secure in its fastness in Russian waters, became headquarters of Russian naval strength in the West. Reval is also the capital of the government of Esthonia. It lies upon the Bay of Reval, a deep, roomy inlet of the Gulf of Finland. The sea port is about 250 miles east-southeast of Petrograd, with which city it is connected by a well-built, trunk-line railway. By night express, Reval is 11 hours from Petrograd, and 13 hours by water. The reinforcements and supplies could be quickly thrown into this important base in case of need. Riga lies nearly 200 miles due south of Reval. Both coasts along the Gulf of Finland are irregular, and the narrows are well adapted to defensive purposes.

Helsingfors, Finland's great seaport is directly opposite to Reval with which it carries on a considerable trade. Reval has been important, both as a commercial and as a fortified harbor, ever since Western civilization penetrated to its estuary. It did an annual aggregate trade before the outbreak of hostilities of well over $30,000,000, the taking the position of third rank among the Baltic Ports of Russia. Spirits, grains, animals, flax, butter, wool, hemp, timber and game birds are its principal articles of export. Its imports are cereals, coal, petroleum and manufactured wares. Reval manufactures some machinery and considerable beer, and adds to the balance sheet of its profits by a regular export of summer bathers. Its population before the war was about 70,000, of whom more than half were Esthonians and nearly 30 per cent Germans. Since the loss of Libau to the Germans, the population has, probably, increased by a number of workers for the development of naval yards to take the place of those lost to the enemy. During summer the great guns pointing toward Finland.

"The city is divided into two parts—Domberg, or Cathedral Hill, and that part of the town upon the beach. The lower and the upper towns are their own administrations. The crag upon which the upper town is built was occupied in the early Middle Ages by an Esthonian for Libau is credited with being the founder of Reval, built a church and a string

MEN FROM AUSTRALIA LANDING TO FIGHT THE TURKS

Australian artillerymen protected by guns of H. M. S. "Implacable" making landing at Dardanelles. Men from everywhere are fighting at the Dardanelles, in the terrific onslaughts of the allies against the Turks and their German officers, but none have been making a braver showing than the Australians, who have achieved almost as much distinction as the Canadians in France.

AUSTRIANS DESTROY AN ITALIAN CRUISER IN ADRIATIC SUNDAY

Submarine Sends Down Warship in Fifteen Minutes, Says Berlin Dispatch.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, wireless to Soville, July 19.—The following official communication was received here today from Vienna under date of July 18:

An Austrian submarine this morning torpedoed and sunk south of Ragusa the Italian cruiser Giuseppe Garibaldi. The cruiser founded within 15 minutes.

The Giuseppe Garibaldi was an armored cruiser of 7,234 tons displacement. She was 344 feet long and was laid down in 1895. Her complement was 550 men. She was armed with one 10-inch, two 8-inch, fourteen 6-inch and ten 3-inch guns. Ragusa is a fortified seaport of Austria-Hungary in Dalmatia on the peninsula of the Adriatic sea, twenty-eight miles north-west of Cattaro.

Austrian Submarine Lost? Paris, July 19.—A telegram from the Rome News Agency says that a refugee who had reached Rome from Pola, the Austrian naval base, says two Austrian submarines which left to reconnoiter the Italian coast have not returned and are believed to have been lost. One of the submarines had a crew of twenty and the other a crew of forty men. The supplies of gas line was sufficient only for four days.

HANDLE IMPORTANT BOOSTS OF TRADE

Herbert C. Hengstler and Wilbur J. Carr.

Wilbur J. Carr is director of the consular service and Herbert C. Hengstler is chief of the state department's consular service.

Castle here in 1219. Hansa merchants came; settled here, and built a flourishing trade. Early in the 14th century it was fortified, and since then it has withstood many sieges and bombardments both by sea and by land. Its fanciful old battlements, beaten streets, its battered citadel and donjon, which the cannon shot of Swedes and Russians scarred, its centuries-old buildings, its ancient archives and many other testimonies of the past, make the quaint old city and the modern deadly stronghold of unusual interest to the peaceful tourist.

CONSUL IS RECALLED FOR FRICTION WITH BRAZILIAN MINISTER

American Representative in Mexico City on Way to Washington to Report Following Differences Over Relief Work.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, July 19.—Arnold Shanklin, American consul general to Mexico City, is on his way to Washington under orders of the state department to report upon conditions. This was stated officially today and incidentally was announced that he was withdrawn temporarily from duty in Mexico City to avoid continuation of friction with Senator Cardozo, the Brazilian minister there.

The past week he went to the Mexican capital to carry on Red Cross relief work. Some difficulties as to the methods developed between the consular general and the Brazilian minister. They were not serious, but as Senator Cardozo had been for many months cooking after American interests in a manner so thorough and satisfactory as to win the gratitude of the state department officials, they regarded it as only proper to remove any cause of friction quite regardless of the merits of the question.

'MURDERED MAN' WAS ABANDONING FAMILY AFRAID TO RETURN

Meanwhile His Alleged Murderer Was Convicted and Sentenced to Waupun—Missing Man at Home Again.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Milwaukee, July 19.—One of the most remarkable cases of mistaken identity on record in which a corpse was identified, buried by his relatives, his supposed murderer tried and convicted and sentenced to Waupun, came to light today when the supposed dead and murdered man returned to his home and became reconciled with his family.

The man is Frank Klug. He was supposed to have been murdered on August 22, last in the town of Lake, near Lake station. Nick Georgian was arrested for murdering "Klug" and sentenced to life in prison for murder in the second degree. When the body of the murdered man was taken to the morgue it was identified as "Klug" by relatives.

During all this time Klug was working for several farmers in the state. Having become disgusted with home life and fearing arrest for abandonment, Klug decided to remain away from his wife and children, yearning to leave what he came of his family induced him to write to a friend and the friend informed him of the supposed murder. It was the first inkling that Klug received of his "death" and subsequent "burial."

ITALIAN MINISTERS RETURN FROM FRONT

Newly Appointed Official and Premier Salandra Are Given Ovation Upon Arrival in Rome.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Rome, July 19, via Paris.—Senator Barzilai, the republican deputy who on Saturday was appointed a member of the cabinet without portfolio, returned from the front yesterday with Senator Salandra. Senator Barzilai's constituents marched with flags and bands to the new minister's home to welcome him. He made a speech to the electors, declaring the war would demonstrate the error of those who talked wildly about a divided Italy. With the accomplishments of the army since his last visit to the front and said there were good prospects that the line of Austrians would be conquered soon.

FERRARI, ITALIAN TENOR, SAID TO BE SOLDIER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Berlin, July 19.—Ferrari, the New York Metropolitan Opera company tenor, who is almost as well known here as in America, is reported as having joined the Italian army. He is the husband of the well known German court singer, Margarete Matzenauer.

LEO FRANK ATTACKED BY FELLOW CONVICT; NOW OUT OF DANGER

Throat Slashed by Prisoner Who Believed Frank Should Have Hanged for Phagan Murder.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Milledgeville, Ga., July 19.—Leo M. Frank, whose throat was cut Saturday night by convict William Green, is now out of danger, according to a statement issued by the prison physician, who remarked, however, that the condition of the patient is still serious.

It now transpires that the jugular vein was only slightly punctured by the knife.

Physicians who examined Leo M. Frank in state prison early today said his condition was much worse. The jagged cut in his throat was swollen and his temperature was 102.5.

To Avenge Mary Phagan.

Green is being held in solitary confinement where he reiterated today his statement that he attacked Frank because he believed the latter should have been hanged for the murder of Mary Phagan.

Frank's wife is constantly at his bedside, having completely recovered from the collapse she suffered from the news of the assault was broken to her.

It was declared today that the only punishment which can be meted out to Green will be continued solitary confinement in the event Frank should live; otherwise he may be tried for murder. Green is already serving life imprisonment.

Sustained Off his assailant Frank got gasps in both of his hands from the same knife. The wounds are not bad, however. Dr. J. M. McNaughton, Frank's Atlanta physician, arrived at noon. He also thinks Frank will recover. He complimented the efforts of the prison doctors, saying their prompt services saved Frank's life.

Dr. J. M. McNaughton, who is serving a life term for murder, is being commuted for the honor part he played, for it was he who rendered first aid, clamping the gushing vein and stopping the hemorrhage. Dr. McNaughton says Frank would surely have died had he not been saved by the life of his fellow prisoner under such circumstances.

Mrs. Leo Frank is broken down and badly fatigued from the harrowing experience of last night. She, too, thinks her husband is on the road to recovery. She declared her husband is the most wonderful man in the world to endure what he has with such patience and heroism.

Physicians who have been at Frank's bedside commented on the fortitude exhibited by him almost in the face of death. For some time he thought he was going to die, but throughout he maintained a wonderful courage, never giving way to pain nor uttering a protest.

PROVINCIAL BANK WILL LOAN SAVINGS TO THE GOVERNMENT.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, July 19.—One of the provincial banks has made the announcement that all deposits hereafter made in its savings department will be loaned to the government for the prosecution of the war. The bank, however, undertakes to repay on demand with 3 per cent interest.

CLERGYMEN TO DRIVE SQUAD OF AMBULANCES FOR RED CROSS WORK.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, July 15.—Twenty-five motor ambulances which are being presented by the "Church Army," an international organization for Red Cross work at the front, are to be driven by clergymen. Each ambulance is provided with a supply of Bibles and a portable Communion set.

ISSUES PUNISHMENT ORDER FOR BELGIANS WHO SERVE THE ENEMIES OF GERMANY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Brussels, via London, July 19.—General Von Bissing, governor general of Belgium, promulgated an order today for the punishment of any Belgians between the ages of sixteen and forty, who leave the state to serve in any capacity for a country at war with Germany. The penalty provided is a fine of 10,000 marks, ($25,000), or five years imprisonment, or both.

VACCINATION ADDS TO ILLS OF SESSION

SMALL POX SCARE AT STATE CAPITOL FOLLOWS GURANTING OF ASSEMBLY-MAN.

DOCTORS TAKE CHARGE

Returning Legislators Must Submit to Orders of State Health Department—Governor Philipp Escapes Sore Arm.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, July 19.—Governor Philipp will not have to be vaccinated despite the fact that Assemblyman Charles E. Plager is quarantined at Seymour with small pox. He visited the executive office shortly before taking his train, Friday noon. The governor announced that he was vaccinated just one year ago.

Sam Banks, the Governor's messenger, was notified today that all who had mingled with Mr. Plager must be vaccinated. Reluctantly he went to the board of health and was "shot."

Dr. J. J. Morgan, member of the assembly from Pepin County, is assisting Dr. C. A. Harper in rounding up returning members of the assembly. The physicians were busy yesterday and today vaccinating members, employees and correspondents. The assembly chamber and adjacent rooms were fumigated Sunday afternoon and Dr. Harper believes it all connected with the legislature are promptly vaccinated there will be no further contagion.

All thoughts of pending legislation were put away at the capitol today for those of pending vaccination. The assembly is going to undergo a complete quarantine if the report of Dr. L. F. Spencer of Wausau, deputy state health officer, shows that Assemblyman C. F. Ploeger of Seymour is at his home suffering from smallpox. The report of Health Officer Holz of Seymour is confirmed, every assemblyman who attended the sessions last week, every assembly employee, clerks and newspaper men will be ordered vaccinated by Dr. C. A. Harper, secretary of the state board of health.

May Terminate Session.

The most serious aspect of the situation is that it may end the session of the assembly. The assembly is in no danger and has declared that he is feeling fine, but it is said that many of the members have expressed themselves unwilling to turn and take any more chances. Dr. Harper has ordered a complete fumigation of the assembly chamber.

If the decision of Dr. Harper is adverse and the members submit to vaccination, it is said today by Dr. Harper that there is no reason why the lower house cannot convene once. This week is one of the most important of the legislative session. The appropriation measures are expected to come up for consideration some time during the week. Full attendance is greatly desired. The finance committee has almost completely finished its work, there being but a few things to consider. The university and other educational appropriations. The general finance measures have all been considered.

Stemmer Bill Mutilated.

All measures pending over the latest bounce of the Stemmer bill which originally was intended to rip open the Baker liquor law. This bill has been sent to the assembly to be amended. It is going to be amended many times, and will not be passed until the end of the session. It is hardly thought that any substitute will be introduced for the education bill, as any bill but the Stemmer bill would not have a chance of getting by the senate. In fact, it is thought that the whole measure will be killed by the house. The governor has said that he will veto the Stemmer bill and he will veto the education bill, as any bill but the Stemmer bill would not have a chance of getting by the senate. ## HOLT STORIES GIVE THIS MAN AN IDEA

Evolves Scheme to Get Reward From Pennsylvania Railroad With Bogus Bomb Plot.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Redding, Pa., July 19.—Harry F. Westbrook, who last week went to a Pennsylvania railroad tower near Altoona, Pa., with a piece of pipe containing twenty sticks of dynamite and said he found the explosive on the tracks, was arrested here last night, and today, according to the police, he confessed to a reward.

Westbrook in his confession, according to the police, said he conceived the idea by reading Frank Holt stories. He made the bomb which the police said was enough dynamite to blow up a city block.

TERSE REPLY TO GERMANY IS EXPECTED

PRESIDENT WILSON AND SECRETARY LANSING HOLD CONFERENCE TODAY AT CAPITOL.

NOTE READY THIS WEEK

Next Communication Will Be of Definite Character According to Best Information Available.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, July 19.—President Wilson and Secretary Lansing today discussed in detail a draft of the note to be sent to Germany this week informing the imperial government what the United States will do if there is further violation of American rights on the high seas.

Reach Same Conclusions.

The return of President Wilson from Corning gave Secretary Lansing his first opportunity to confer on the policy to be followed as the result of Germany's failure to satisfy the American demand made in the note of June 9. It was understood that the president and Mr. Lansing found that they had reached about the same conclusion—that the next communication to Germany will be of definite character, making unmistakably clear that the United States cannot be expected to remain passive in the event of another attack of an unarmed and unresisting ship with loss of Americans.

The note is now practically agreed upon will announce to Germany the intention of the United States to assert its right on the high seas in accordance with international law. There probably will be little or no discussion on the principles already treated at length in previous notes. Prompt action in dispatching the note was generally forecast. Tomorrow it will be submitted to the president to the cabinet and possibly may be ready at Friday's meeting. In official quarters it was agreed the communication will be on its way to Berlin by Saturday.

Effect of Orduña Attack.

Although it is not certain whether reference will be made to the attack on the Cunard liner Orduña, it is known that that incident has swept aside the suggestion that the next communication would take into consideration that German submarine commanders in actual practice were conforming to the rules of international law. Irrespective of the Orduña attack, the fact that a vessel carrying Americans bound to the United States and transporting no contraband was sunk without warning, impresses high officials that German submarine warfare still held forth many hazards for Americans traveling the high seas "on lawful errands."

Secretary Lansing was at the White House for more than an hour. The president is said to have become convinced that the next communication to Germany must point in much more emphatic terms than has heretofore been used, and that the intentions of the American government not to surrender any of its rights.

LUSITANIA VICTIM'S BODY COMES ASHORE

Corpses of Lindon W. Bates, Jr., of New York Said to Have Been Found on Irish Coast.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 19.—A body supposed to be that of Lindon W. Bates, Jr., of New York, who lost his life on the Lusitania, has been washed ashore on the Limerick coast. A telegram to that effect was received today from West-ly Frost, American consul at Queenstown, by Newton B. Knox, an American mining engineer, and friend of Mr. Bates.

The telegram says a gold watch and gold cigarette case marked with Mr. Bates' monogram was found on the body. Mr. Knox will leave tonight for Queenstown to take charge of the body.

"RAILS" BEAT LEWIS AND TIE FOR FIRST

"Knitters" Fall Before Onslaught of McMann in Air-Tight Game.—
Pens Down Y. M. C. A.
A combination of air-tight pitching by speed pitcher Ray Felter, the all-state high school basketball star, gave Saturday's baseball game between the "Knitters" and the "Pens" to the climbing railroad team in the Commercial league pennant race, at the fair grounds.
The "Rails" now tie the "Y" for first place, and it is up to the Christians to play professional class ball to keep them from clinching that berth. The game Saturday between the Lewis Knitting company and the railroad was marked by the wonderful pitching of Johnny McMann, the young suitor from Milwaukee, and the hitting of Ray Felter, who managed to land them right at the right time. The sixth inning was the feature period of the game, when with two on for the "Rails" and two out, Felter landed a two-run home run, driving in the winning runs. The score stood 2 to 2 in favor of the "Knitters" until the basket tosser had pulled his little stunt, which put all hopes in the hands of the Lewis aggregation in the background. Not satisfied with having won the game, Felter clinched it in the eighth by knocking in another run. The final count showed the railroad to have slipped over a 5 to 3 victory.
The "Y" hopes for "Arabella" faded to a deep purple in the last game of the afternoon, when the "Pens" band them an awful drubbing to the tune of 9 to 3. Connell, pitching for the "Knitters" by lightning and allowing them but four hits. Errors seemed to be very much in vogue on the part of the "Y" and the balloon started upward and tip them an overthrow in the third. In the fourth runs for the "Pens." Lenz did not seem to have the "stuff" and retired in favor of Owens, who pitched the latter proving himself more of an obstacle to the "Pens" team. The support of the "Pens" was great and allowed them to get away with the game.

Summary of the games: First game, Y. M. C. A. 3, Parker Pen company 3; batteries for Y. M. C. A., Lenz, Owens; for Parker Pen company, Connell and Nehr. Second game, Railroad 5, Lewis Knitting company 3; batteries for the Railroad, McMann and Lee; for the Lewis company, Byrne and Loran.

TEAR UP SURFACE OF CENTER AVENUE

City Begins Improvements on Street Which Has Long Been Untouched Owing to Injunction.

For the first time in recent years the street department has employed a scarifier in the repaving of streets, and it is probable one of the machines will be purchased by the city in the near future. On Center avenue one of the surfaces of the street is being used to rip up the surface of the street for four inches in depth. The scarifier thoroughly dislodges the upper crown of the surface, and today three blocks of Center are torn up.
When the roadway is ripped up the loose material is graded and then rolled extensively and oiled, making it ready for a new pavement. This is the first work that has been done on Center avenue, as the injunction issued against improvements some years ago prevented the city touching the street. A petition calling for repairs received by the commission recently was the means which the council obtained a leave to improve the highway.
It is the aim of Street Commissioner Goodman to complete the first three blocks before tearing up the others. One block will not need repairs. The scarifier is a valuable machine, and it is a sincere hope that such will be the case, as the city on storm sewer construction work and paving which has been ordered. The making the larger stones from the sand spread over the oil to protect the blanket of liquid, and the oil on the streets where the oil was thoroughly dried were swept with the sweeping machines.

ORGANIZE BIG BAND AT LUTHER VALLEY

Organization of Forty-five Pieces Gives First Concert at Orfordville on Saturday Evening.

It was an event of importance at Orfordville Saturday evening, when the newly organized Luther Valley band of forty pieces gave its first concert on the main corner of the village while the throng of auditors and merchants of the village were gathered at the showing made by the band and provided the "treats" of cigars, ice cream cones and other delicacies. The band is composed of farmer boys and villagers, and has been in process of formation for three months past under the direction of Russell Hartman of Beloit. The excellence of their program on Saturday evening was a testimony to the success of the venture and will insure the community of the future. There were several Janesville citizens in the audience at the initial concert who joined enthusiastically in the applause and were much impressed at the fine showing of community spirit.

Notice: The ladies of the Cargill M. E. church will hold their general meeting tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock in the church parlors. A large attendance is desired.

ROCK COUNTY G. A. R. PICNIC WEDNESDAY

Rockford Post Will Be Guests at Annual Outdoor Event—Yost Park Is Scene of Picnic.

The Rock county G. A. R. will hold its annual picnic at Yost park, Wednesday, the 21st, when the anniversary of the battle of Bull Run will be celebrated. As no picnic was held last summer, a big interest is taken by the old veterans and their wives this year.

The members of the Rockford Post are to be the guests of honor. Everybody is invited to attend the picnic and extensive preparations are being made in the line of entertainment.

An interesting program is planned for the day. The dinner will be served from twelve until one-thirty. A band concert will take place at one-thirty, after which Chaplain Brown will give the invocation. The address of the afternoon will be given by William J. McKay, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rockford. The Sargent Post is expected to attend.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)
AT MYERS THEATRE.
The next release of the Metro Pictures Corporation will be "The Cowboy and The Lady" with S. Miller Kent. The story, although widely known, is printed here in brief.
Ted North, a young Easterner, falls in love with Margaret Primrose, daughter of the man his father ruined. Primrose held his enemy against young North and refuses to permit his daughter to see him. To spite North, Primrose forces his daughter into marriage with a young millionaire by the name of Weston. Young North, heartbroken, leaves for the west. Weston neglects his bride and continues his dissipated life that had already made him notorious. Weston's health gives way and seven years later upon the advice of his physician he goes west, taking his wife with him.
Upon their arrival at a small cattle station, Mrs. Weston renews her acquaintance with North, and Weston carries on his dissipation. North, doctor's warnings, meets a girl named Molly, proprietress of a dance hall. Molly's attentions arouse the jealousy of her sweetheart, "Quick Foot Jim." Weston prevails upon Molly to elope with him, but as they start to put their plans into operation, "Jim" discovers them and slays Weston. Circumstantial evidence then plays an important role and North is convicted of the crime. In the meantime, Mrs. Weston learns the true facts in the case, a posse starts in search of Jim and Molly and overtakes them. North is exonerated and the picture ends, not as expected, but as it should—happily.
"The Cowboy and The Lady" will be seen at the Myers Theatre Friday, July 23rd, under the auspices of The United Spanish War Veterans. Continuous performances from 1 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

TRYING DAYS.

These are trying days at Madison. The temper of the members of both houses of the legislature are worn to a fine edge and it takes but a suggestion to bring forth a wordy combat in which sharp words and insinuations are exchanged that do anything but calm the atmosphere. The anti-administration press is prone to take advantage of these lapses to make much of them and to belittle the unfortunate subjects of the biting sarcasm of the various speakers. They also seek to impress the public that the greater portion of the sessions are over and adjournment is in sight, basing this statement upon the fact that the senate has done to death the administration's pet measures. Perhaps they are counting without a consultation with the governor, however. Philipp was elected to bring about certain reforms and his reputation as a fighting man is so well established that it might be barely possible that he will refuse to permit the legislature to adjourn until these reorganization plans of his, which have a reputation of state expenses, are an accomplished fact. Already he has shown his determination not to sign measures he believes wrong and the return of the Steiner bill to the legislature is an evidence of this fact. In fact this has been a double-edged sword to aid in solving the much-troubled liquor question in Milwaukee only, it now has passed the senate as an amendment to the Baker law increasing the population requirement for saloon permits from two hundred and fifty to five hundred. Of course this does not affect cities that now have a license, but it will in the near future should a community vote dry and later return to the wet column it would materially change the total number of dram shops in many districts. It has provided a roadback to the liquor interests and is one more step in the interests of state-wide prohibition. In both the assembly and the senate the strain of the long drawn-out session, the useless debates and the extended hearings which start nowhere and end in the same place, have had their effect upon the temper of members and consequently will show its impression on the laws that may be passed from now on.

THE TWO NATIONS.

That Germany's reply to the so-called "Lusitania" note is highly unsatisfactory is the verdict of President Wilson. Secretary Lansing and the great majority of editors throughout the country, irrespective of party. The German communication ignores the carefully prepared and forceful arguments of President Wilson's note and submits a series of contentions more suitable for a newspaper article than for a serious diplomatic controversy. But while this is the general opinion regarding the German note, the public appears to be mystified regarding the reasons for its unsatisfactory character. They cannot understand why Germany has not taken the United States more seriously, why that government did not take up and attempt to answer the various contentions of the United States. There are, however, many students of international affairs, including certain foreign diplomats stationed in Washington, who are convinced that an examination of the administration's Mexican policy—or lack of policy—affords a complete explanation of the attitude of the German foreign office, especially when taken in connection with the extraordinarily forceful—not to say indiscreet—language of President Wilson's note to Germany of February 19th, in which, replying to Germany's announcement of her establishment of the war zone, Mr. Wilson wrote that if Germany's naval authorities infringed the rights of American citizens, "the United States would be constrained to hold the Imperial German government to a strict accountability for such acts."

NOTHING AT ALL?

The mere fact a second passenger steamer, sailing for this short time, with some twenty-two American citizens on board, was subject to an attack by a German submarine which endeavored to sink it, is really nothing at all. The press will discuss it for a day or two and some of the violent anti-German writers will demand action on the part of the United States and then it will lie down as have numerous other incidents. It is merely an episode in this great struggle of ages when the law of might and not right, is supposed to rule the universe. It would be just as senseless to post a sign on the side of a building, "The English Sparrows Can Not Build Here," and expect it to be obeyed as to continue to send protests to Germany against its sub-sea warfare even though the lives and property of citizens of the United States are seriously affected.

CHAMP RAMPANT.

Champ Clark has married off his daughter with much éclat and now has gone westward to San Francisco where on the occasion of the presentation of the wonderful bell, that tolled out the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, to the Pan-American exposition, burst into a warning to the American people to be prepared for eventualities and urged the nation to be ready to meet emergencies. Perhaps it was the presence of the great Liberty Bell that evoked such an address, but at any rate coming from Champ Clark it is a warning to be heeded. It is not necessary for this nation to become a militant government, to burden the people with taxation for the maintenance of an immense armed force, but preparedness for what might happen would cost but little and we would not be caught napping should the occasion arise to use our new-found power. An ounce of prevention will often cure a disease before it even occurs.

That Wisconsin legislature that turned down the plan of the woman's suffragists should bow their heads with shame now that Champ Clark has come out in the open for it and Bryan and Roosevelt are already pledged.

General Sherman would have died of ennui if he had been forced to stay for nearly a year fighting in the same place with never a chance of a few hundred miles march to the sea, or the enemy's capital in prospect.

Is it not strange that the old theory of war is all done away with and the belligerent nations still insist upon the old fashioned frontal attacks instead of a few new surprises.

The combination of brains that the government can command for a board of strategy is something amazing when you stop to figure the possible members up.

This talk about old-fashioned days and the summer of this or that year being ideal brings forth the question, "Was there ever an ideal summer?"

Perhaps St. Swinton knew what he was talking about. This "forty days' rain" talk will spoil many a vacation plan before it is over with.

That sudden "thaw" in the New York court room last week was the blow that almost killed William Travers Jerome.

On the days that a Palm Beach suit feels comfortable it also wrinkles most horribly all over the wearer's anatomy.

Have you noticed how few pleasant Sundays there have been this winter-spring-summer?

Why not hang the weather up to dry as you would a week's washing.

SNAP SHOTS

Some politicians wear rubber heels. Others never stir from home without the accompaniment of a full brass band.

There are various ways of expressing gratitude. A Los Angeles man left a fortune to a girl who refused to marry him.

Buck Kibby, who has tried every other plan, says the only way he can furnish the nation with a surplus of pen-knives is to have a surgeon perform an operation and afterwards saw the knife up in the incision.

The unwritten law which compels the father of a new-born baby to buy cigars for his friends is an abuse so far untouched by reform. The father of a new baby should receive cigars, not give them.

You, doubtless, have noticed that when mother makes a sofa-pillow it is a cushion for father's rocker.

In Bulgaria, bachelors over thirty are taxed $50 a year. And it is the consensus of opinion among bachelors of all nations that it is worth it.

The average man's notion of good music is the six o'clock whistle.

A criminal without money is known as a "crook." But if he is rich, he is referred to as a "malefactor."

A town man figures his horse as a liability. A farmer figures his as an asset.

They say there is but one purple rat in the world. Still, one is enough for my purpose. I very seldom have occasion to use a purple rat—Buck Kibby.

When the kid's away.
It's a long blue day.
When the kid's away.
There is no patter of little feet.
No childish laughter that's passing
No prattle to make life's joy complete.
When the kid's away.

No romping gay
When the kid's away.
Life is relieved of half its bliss.
The world is wrong and it goes
No big bear hug and no good-night kiss.
When the kid's away.

Simple Logic.
PROOF.
A motor man drives a car.
An automobile is a car.
A chauffeur drives an automobile.
Therefore, a chauffeur is a motor man.

A motorman is a man in charge of a motor.
An automobile is a motor.
A chauffeur is in charge of an automobile.
Therefore, a motorman is a chauffeur.

PUT.
Wouldn't it be grand to see the motorman's expression when you tell him he's a chauffeur? Go on and tell him.
Aw, gwan,
Very.

Noah Webster Down to Date.
Chauffeur—Man who is wise enough to run an automobile, but too wise to own one.

Politician—Man who can make a kind read the want ads.

Weather man—One whose predictions are bound to come true sometimes.

Barber—An expert conversationalist.
Umpire—The lowest known form of animal life.

Buckwheat Cake—Tough dis-shaped article containing ten parts buckwheat and nine parts indigestion, used by the ancients as an article of food.

Cantaloupe—A small melon which is always too ripe or not ripe enough.

The Bluegill.
When the bluegill are a-bitin' and the bait is in the can.
It is then the restless spirit gets its grip on a man.

You kin have all of your brook trout and yer bass for all of me.
There is just that kind of fishin' in the world that I kin see.

I don't care for fancy tackle, just a good old bamboo pole.
And a hook and line to drol in some prolific hole.

Now of all the sports a-goin', I consider it the best.
To sit right there a-fishin' till the sun sets in the west.

I can't always sometimes, tell if I will get a bite.
Most generally I don't, but that don't trouble me a mite.

You don't go for the fish so much as for the chance.
To lie down on the fragrant bank and view the vast expanse
Of heaven's blue and see the clouds go sailing by all day.

I kin get all the fish I want upon my homeward way.
I pass right by a butcher shop and my wife doesn't know
A bluegill comes from a sturgeon, so that's how I come to go.

Hush! Hush! Middy!

Geographic Society's War Primer

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Windau, when an attack of a German squadron was reported as being repulsed the other day, forms the subject of the latest war primer of the National Geographic Society.

Windau is Russia's Atlantic City, the place where the Russian family, moderate income goes to spend the vacation period. Before the outbreak of the war, it had succeeded in winning quite a reputation as a bathing resort, and increasing numbers of summer-wearied business men from Petrograd found their way each year to the seashore.

The harbor of Windau is a convenient one for Russian blockade runners, laden with goods from Sweden and Norway. It is free from ice almost all the year around, and its peace-time trade has reached some importance.

The annual imports of Windau have totaled as high as $4,000,000, while it has exported wares in amounts ranging between $8,000,000 and $12,000,000 a year. Grains, timber and other agricultural produce have made up the bulk of its exports, and its imports have been largely manufactured goods.

Windau is an old Lettish town. Its appearance testifies to its age, which is underscored for the mere visitor by its entire lack of those modern conveniences that make present-day city life worth living. And Riga just 100 miles away is probably the most modern city in all Russia.

Most interesting of its relics is the old castle of Windau, built in 1290.

JANESVILLE BOYS GREAT GARDENERS

Civics Commission Call on Boys and Inspect Gardens and Are Highly Pleased With Result.

Chairman Levy and Secretary McDowell of the Civics commission of the Commercial club made their first garden inspection trip this morning, visiting the homes of a number of the boys who have made gardens and taken care of them during the past few weeks. They were asked to prepare and keep the gardens by the Civics commission, and have all developed wonderful results. Mr. Levy and Mr. McDowell were more than pleased to see what the boys of both the high and grade schools had accomplished. It means a more beautiful city and is a worthy work. The boys have been exceptionally successful. They are all to be congratulated on their efforts.

A later inspection tour will be made soon, when it is hoped to see all of the boys, as only a partial list of them were called upon this morning.

Those who were called upon today are Lawrence Nichols, August Place, Paul Clayton, Clarence Henning, Arthur Hennings, Karl Decker, Robert Kilia, Elmer Hethorn, Edmund Fitchett, Lovell Black, Elmer Dutton, Victor Neuses, Lyle Boyes and Ray Thompson.

CANDLE TIPS OVER; FLAMES BURN ROOF

Between Two and Three Hundred Dollars Caused to Court Street House at One O'clock.

Flames starting from a candle tipping over and igniting the roof of the residence occupied by Mrs. H. A. Ray, at 717 Court street, caused between two and three hundred dollars' worth of damage to the roof of the house and attic floor at one o'clock today. A workman was using the candle for light in the north corner of the attic while repairing electric wires. While he was down stairs the lighted candle probably tipped over.

From the corner of the attic the fire spread rapidly over the roof and floor, making it a hard problem for the fire men to reach with the chemicals and hand-pumps. Some household equipment which was stored in the attic was damaged and the plaster on the second floor was knocked off by the firemen in searching for fire between the floors. The property is owned by Mrs. Jacob Stern.

FOR SAFETY FROM LIGHTNING

Scientist Tells What to Do When One Is Caught in Thunderstorm Far From Shelter.

It is considered dangerous to be the most prominent object in a field or common during a thunder storm. Indeed, more persons are struck and killed in this way than when sheltering under trees. What, then, is a man or woman or child to do when caught in the open in a thunder storm? They may take shelter, says Sir Ray Lankester, in a wood, though not under any isolated tree nor under a long high hedgerow.

WHITWATER WINS FROM WATERTOWN IN FAST GAME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Whitewater, July 18.—Whitewater and Watertown battled hard for ten innings yesterday to decide which side would be the winners. It finally ended 2 to 2 in the latter's favor. It was a stellar ball at the catcher, although it looked bad for the local team in the first when the bases were full and no outs, but Muldoen got away with only one save in their half the home fellows made two errors. The two scores made by the visitors came in the first and fourth. A long fly to deep infield, to Miller, who made a pretty new to the plate for a close catch, was the first score, and in the fourth, with a man on first and third, O'Neill threw wild to second for a quick return to shut off the runner at the plate, which made the second run. Whitewater had a chance to score in the eighth when with one out "Dusty" Miller hit over the road for three bases but would not stop and was an easy out at the plate. Crandall, coaching on third, could not stop him. The tenth opened and after three easy outs the locals came to bat. Rock was hit by a pitched ball. Markle hit with a single. Anderson dropped a safe one behind first, scoring Roehl. Muldoen pitched superb ball, getting fifteen strike-outs.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It Is Plain to See That Father Has Studied Natural History—

The Ball of Fire

By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester

Illustrated by C. D. Rhodes

(Copyright, 1914, by the Red Book Corporation.)

The men whom Lucie and Arly had collected were an especial joy. They had all the accomplished outward symbols of fervor without any of its oppressive insistence. Gail, as an agreeable duty to her new found self, experimented with several of them, and found them most amusing and pleasant, but nothing more disturbing.

Dick Rodley was the most persistent, and, in spite of the fact that he was so flawlessly handsome as to excite ridicule, Gail found herself, by and by, defending him against her own iconoclastic sense of humor. He reached her after the minstrel show, while Houston Van Ploon and Willis Cunningham were still struggling profusely with their burnt cork, and he stole her from under the very eyes of Jack Larby, while that smitten youth was exchanging wit, at a tremendous loss, with caustic Arly Fosland.

"Have you seen the new century plant in the conservatory?" Dick asked, beaming down at her, his black eyes glowing like coals.

He strolled with Gail to the seat behind the rose screen, but it was fully engaged, and he led the way out toward the geranium alcove.

"Where is the century plant?" He was a tremendously pleasant fellow. When she walked through a crowded room with Dick, she knew, from the looks of admiration, just what people were saying; that they were an extraordinary handsome couple.

"There is no century plant," he shamelessly confessed.

"I knew it," and she laughed. "I don't mind admitting that it was a point-blank lie," he cheerfully told her. "I wanted to get you out here alone, all to myself," and his voice went down two tones. He did it so prettily!

"My happy, happy childhood days," laughed Gail. "The boys used to talk that way on the way home from school."

"I don't doubt it," and Dick smiled appreciatively. "The dullest sort of a boy would find himself saying nice things to you; but I shall stop it."

"Oh, please don't!" begged Gail. "You are so delightful at it." He pounced on a corner half hidden by a tub of ferns. There was no bench there, but it was at least semi-isolated, and he leaned gracefully against the window ledge, looking down at her earnestly as she stood, slenderly outlined against the green of the ferns, in her gown of delicate blue sparkling with opalescent flakes.

"That's just the trouble," he complained. "I don't wish you to be aware that I am saying what you call pretty things. I wish, instead, to be effective," and there was a roughness in his voice which had come for the first time. She was a trifle startled by it, and she lowered her eyes before the steady gaze which he poured down on her. Why, he was in earnest!

"Then take me to Lucie," she smiled up at him, and strolled in toward the ballroom.

Willis Cunningham met them at the door.

"You promised me the first dance," he breathlessly informed Gail. He had been walking rapidly.

"I've the second one, remember, Gail," Dick reminded her, as he danced around the ballroom for his own partner, but Gail distinctly felt his eyes following her as she walked away with Cunningham.

"I know now of what your profile reminds me," Cunningham told her; "the Chameaux 'Praying Nymph.' It is the most spiritually beautiful of all the pictures in the Louvre."

"I wonder which is the stronger emotion in me just now," she returned; "gratified vanity or curiosity."

"I hope it's the latter," smiled Cunningham. "I recall now a gallery in which there is a very good copy of the Chameaux canvas, and I'd be delighted to take you."

"I'll go with pleasure," promised Gail, and Cunningham turned to her with a grateful smile.

"I would prefer to show you the original," he ventured.

"Oh, look at them tuning their drums," cried Gail, and he thought that she had entirely missed his hint, that the keenest delight in his life would be to lead her through the Louvre, and from thence to a perspective of picture galleries, dazzling with all the hues of the spectrum, and as long as life!

He had other things which he wanted to say, but he calculatingly reserved them for the day of the picture viewing, when he would have her exclusive attention; so, through the dance, he talked of trifles far from his heart. He was a nice chap, too.

Dick Rodley was on hand with the last stroke of the music, to claim her for his dance. By one of those waves of unspoken agreement, Gail was being "rushed." It was her night, and she enjoyed it to the full.

Van Ploon danced with her, danced conscientiously, keeping perfect time to the music, avoiding, with practiced adroitness, every possible pocketing, or even hem contacts with surrounding couples, and acquitting himself of lightly turned observations at the expiration of about every seventy seconds. He quite approved of her; extraordinarily so. He had never met a girl who approached so near the thousand per cent grade of perfection by all the blue ribbon points.

It was while she was enjoying her second restful dance with Van Ploon that Gail, swinging with him near the south windows, heard the hoot of an auto horn, and near the conclusion of the dance, saw Allison standing in the doorway of the ballroom, with his hands in his pockets, watching her with a smile. Her eyes lighted with pleasure, and she nodded gayly to him over Van Ploon's tall shoulder. When the dance stopped she was on the far side of the room, and was instantly the center of a buzzing little knot of dancers, from out of which carefree laughter radiated like visible flashes of musical sound. She emerged from the group with the arms of two bright-eyed girls around her waist, and met Allison sturdily breasting the currents which had set towards the conservatory, the drawing rooms, or the buffet.

"Nobody has saved me a dance," he complained.

"Nobody expected you until tomorrow," Gail smilingly returned, introducing him to the girls. "I'll beg you one of my dances from Ted or somebody."

"One will be enough for me, unless you can steal me some more of your own," he told her, glancing down at her, from coiffure to blue pointed slippers, with calm appreciation. "You are looking great tonight," and his gaze came back to rest in her glowing eyes. Her fresh color had been heightened by the excitement of the evening, but now an added flush swept lightly over her cheeks, and passed.

"I'll see what I can do," she speculated, looking at her dance card. "I think one is all you get."

"I'm lucky even to have that," declared Allison in content. "The fourth dance down. That will just give me time to punish the buffet. I'm hungry as a bear. I started out here without my dinner."

Her next partner came in search of her presently, and the music struck up, and Allison, nodding to his many acquaintances jovially, for he was in excellent humor in these days of building, and planning, and clearing ground for an entirely new superstructure of life, circled around to the dining room, where he performed savage feats at the buffet. Soon he was out again, standing quietly at the edge of things, and watching Gail with keen pleasure, both when she danced and when, in the intermissions, the guests or one party gravitated to her like moths to a magnet. Her popularity pleased him, and flattered him. Suddenly he caught sight of Eldridge Babbitt, a middle-aged man who was watching a young woman with the same pleasure Allison was experiencing in the contemplation of Gail.

"Just the man I wanted to see," announced Allison, making his way to Babbitt. "I have a new freightage proposition for the National Dairy Products consolidation."

Babbitt brightened visibly. He had been missing something keenly these past two days, and now all at once he realized what it was: business.

"I can't see any possible new angle," returned Babbitt cautiously, and with a backward glance at the dashing young Mrs. Babbitt. He headed instinctively for the library.

Laughingly Gail finished her third dance down. She had enjoyed several sparkling encounters in passing with Dick Rodley, and she was buoyantly exhilarated as she started to stroll from the floor with her partner. She had wanted to find cherub-cheeked Marion Kenneth, and together they walked through the conservatory, and the dining room, and the deserted billiard room, with its bright light on the green cloth and all the rest of the rooms in dimness. There was a narrow space at one point between the chairs and the table, and it unexpectedly wedged them into close contact. With a sharp intake of his breath, the fellow, a ruddy-faced, thick-necked, full-lipped young man who had followed her with his eyes all evening, suddenly turned, and caught her in his embrace.

Gail, turning, hurried out of the side door to the veranda. Her knees were trembling, but she walked the full length of the wide porch, trying instinctively to forget the sickening humiliation. She was near a window, and, advancing a step, she looked in. It was the library, and Allison sat there, so clean and wholesome looking, with his pink shaven face and his white evening waistcoat, and his dark hair beginning to sprinkle with gray at the temples. He was so sturdy and so strong and so dependable looking, as he sat earnestly talking with Babbitt. Gail hurried to the front door and rang the bell.

"Hello, Gail," greeted the cheery voice of Allison, as she came in. "My dance next, isn't it?"

His voice was so good, so comforting, so reassuring.

"I think so," she replied, standing hesitantly in the doorway, and thankful that the lights were canopied in this room.

Allison drew the memorandum pad toward him, and rose.

"By the way, there's one thing I forgot to tell you, Babbitt, and it's rather important." He hesitated and glanced toward the door. "You'll excuse me just half a minute, won't you, Gail?"

She had noticed that assumption of intimate understanding in him before, and she had secretly admired it. Now it was a comfort and a joy.

"Surely," she granted, and passed on in to the library alcove, a sheltered nook where she was glad to be alone, to rescue herself from the whirl of anger, and indignation, and humiliation—above all, humiliation—which had swept around her. Her face was hot and cold by turns, and she was almost on the point of crying, in spite of her constantly reiterated self-admonishment that she must control herself here, when Allison came to the door of the alcove.

"All right, Gail," he said laconically. She felt suddenly weary, but she rose and joined him. When she slipped her hand in his arm, strong, and warm, and pulsing, she was aware of a thrill from it, but the thrill was just restfulness.

"You look a little tired," judged the practical Allison, as they strolled, side by side, into the hall, and he patted the slender hand which lay on his arm.

"Not very," she lightly replied, and unconsciously she snuggled her hand more comfortably into its resting place. A little sigh escaped her lips, deep-drawn and fluttering. It was a sigh of content.

CHAPTER X.

"Gentlemen, There is Your Empire!"

"That's a brilliant piece of engineering, Allison," observed huge Richard Haverman, by way of pleasant comment, and he glanced admiringly at Allison after his eye had roved around the little company of notables. The feat of bringing these seven men together at a specific hour was greater than having consolidated the brilliant new Atlantic-Pacific railroad.

"Let's get to the details," barked a voice with the volume of a St. Bernard. It came from Arthur Grandin, the head of the Union Fuel company, which controlled all the wood and coal in the United States, and all the oil in the world. His bald spot came exactly on a level with the back of his chair, and he wore a fierce mustache.

"I'm putting in the Atlantic-Pacific as my share of the pool, gentlemen," explained Allison. "My project, as I have told you, is to make this the main trunk, the vertebrae as it were, of the International Transportation company. I have consolidated with the A-P the Municipal Transportation company, and I have put my entire fortune in it, to lay it on the table absolutely unnumbered."

Dinner Stories

"There's a delivery wagon driving up to our door," said hubby. Been shopping again?"

"Well, I didn't have anything to do," replied wifey, "so I went down to Wana Cooper's and listened to the concert in their auditorium. It was just splendid, too. After that I went up to the grocery department and tried some new cereal they're demonstrating. I managed to get three helpings, so I didn't need to spend money for luncheon. Then I looked at the fashion parade and spent the rest of the afternoon in the art gallery. After that I didn't feel any more like leaving the store without buying anything, so I had them send me up a spool of thread."

Some time ago Hans was enjoying a quiet hour with a friend over a social pretzel, when he suddenly changed the conversation and turned to the other with an animated expression.

"Shoot! think vat I see dis afternoon, Yawcohl!" said he. "It was der verse efer! Two men hit by a trolley und cut up shoost der same like choppin' wood!"

"You's dat?" explained the friend, sitting right up and beginning to take notice. "Do you mean to say dot you had seen some sights like dat? Vere you see him?"

"In der afternoon newspaper!" was the innocent rejoinder of Hans.

"Well, Freddie," said his mother, "did you learn anything new at school today?"

"Yes'm," said Freddie. "What did you learn new?"

"I got on to a new way o' gettin' out o' school fer an hour, by stuffin' red ink up me nose." —Ladies' Home Journal.

Bait.

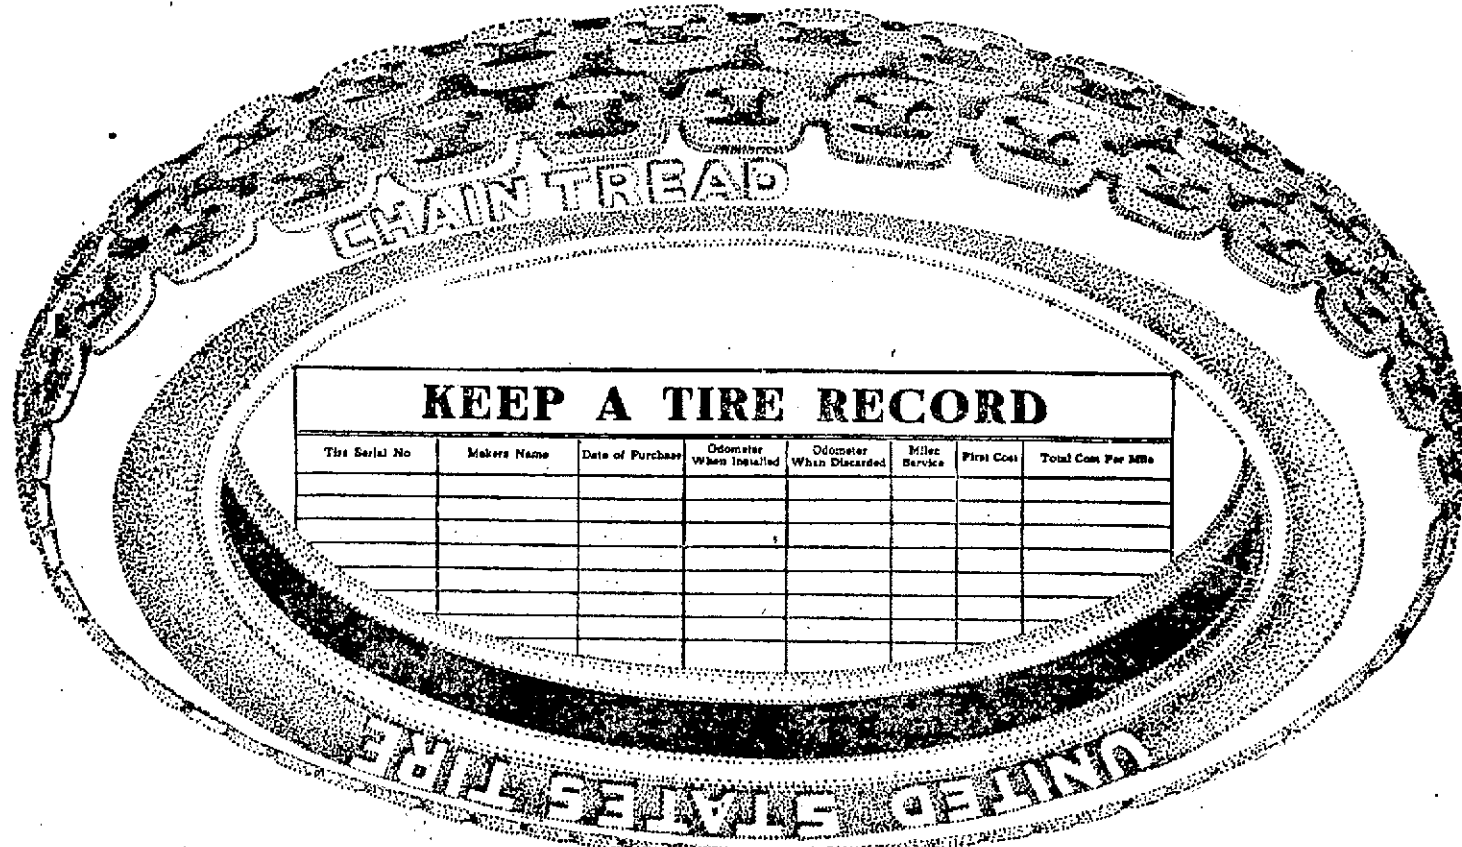

The attention of the taxi driver was called to a purse lying on the floor of his car. He carefully looked around and then remarked confidentially: "Well, sir, when business is bad I sometimes put it there and leave my door open. The purse is empty, of course, but you have no idea what a number of people jump in for a short drive. I've had five within the last hour, sir."

ALL CHICAGO TEAMS TAKE SECOND PLACE

Sox and Whales Tumble From Lead Following Cubs—"Smoky" Joe Wood Is Sox Hoodoo.

Deep clouds of gloom settled over Chicago last evening, when it was learned that the Whales and White Sox had likewise fallen with the Cubs, into second place. The Sox lost to Smoky Joe Wood yesterday, 6 to 2, with Faber and Cleotis failing utterly to hold on to the lead. The Sox have held first place for eight weeks, barring one day. It isn't so bad, when all three teams have a chance to get to top place again today, if they win. The Cubs will battle with the Phillies twice today, their league superior, and a double win would put them on easy street for a while at least. The Whales will meet Brooklyn on the Addison street grounds, while Boston will again attempt to lower the Sox percentage at the South Side.

MORRIS MILLER

Though Hans Lobert has his body incased in leather bandages because of his broken rib, he refuses to be counted out and is in uniform just the same and on the coaching lines.

Certain Brooklyn critics have been roasting Ollie O'Mara unmercifully, indicating that Ollie's alleged idea that he is the best shortstop in the game is not shared by everybody.

Manager Robinson of Brooklyn found that Phil Douglas had not been a change of some. The former Red pitcher is off the reservation again and suspended for breaking loose.

Bill Deak of the Cardinals, the most effective pitcher in the National league last year, did not manage to get over a shut-out until the last day of June, when he beat the Pirates, 2 to 0. He had already lost as many games as he lost all last year.

Up to July 1, the Brooklyn Dodgers had lost twenty-two times by one run, which some think shows the hard run of luck the Dodgers have been having, though others may be unkind enough to intimate that it shows a lack of the winning punch.

In the first game of the St. Louis-Pittsburgh double-header June 29, the Cardinals had a one-run lead and two men out in the ninth inning, when Casey Stengel muffed a fly off Hinchman's bat. A fusillade of hits followed by the Pirates and they finally won the game, 6 to 5.

Al Demaree got in bad with Philadelphia scribes because of some criticism he made of their writing and the scribes are showing their charity and broadmindedness by taking daily flings at the Philly pitcher, indicating quite clearly that they have the same faults for which they par Demaree.

Pitcher Lee Meadows of the Cardinals, the man with the glasses, was near to the Hall of Fame at Cincinnati, but it soon blew over. One hit, that a double by Heinie Groh. The same Groh in the same game, spiked Third Baseman Betzel of the Cards and put him out of business for a week or more.

Roger Bresnahan and Heine Zimmerman had one of their old-time rows during the Cubs-Reds series at Cincinnati, but it soon blew over. Zim failed to run out a hit, and Roger fined him a hundred, whereupon Zim quit the team for good.

The next day, realizing that the player is crippled, regretted the time, and it is intimated, apologized.

John Evers got in the game for Boston June 26, taking part in the second contest of a double-header with the Giants. He showed evidence of lameness, however, which was pronounced the next day that he had to return to the bench. A broken ankle did not interfere with his hitting, for in his initial game he drove out a home run, a double and a single.

It must be comforting to the veteran Jack Meyers to know that Manager McGraw is trying to get him off the roster and that even Cincinnati will not have him. McGraw, according to the story, offered the Indian and Brainerd for Wingo, but Manager Horner of the Reds refused to make the deal. Meyers might at least play first base for the Reds to their advantage.

Rumor has it that Fred Lincoln, who umpired awhile in the National league last year, will be back on the staff shortly. He has been doing coaching work for a college team and is ready to take up the indicator again. Opinions are expressed in various circles that Lincoln might be an improvement over some of the umpires now on Mr. Tenor's staff.

Charley Brickley of Harvard is to play outfield this summer for the Colonials, a New Haven team composed mostly of Yale men. A teammate is Duke Watson, whose heart he broke when he doublet and scored in the second game of the Yale-Harvard series.

Copenhagen, July 19.—The famous Danish Yacht Nordica, which has been selected to represent Denmark in the regatta to be held at San Francisco during the Panama-Pacific fair, the yacht will be carried on a steamer sailing from Copenhagen direct for San Francisco. The Nordica's captain is a Dane named Meulengracht-Madsen, but his crew will be made up of Americans.

Serbian Superstition.
On the eve of St. Barbara's day in Serbia it is a custom to boil a small portion of every species of grain in a pot over a woodfire. In the morning the surface of the grain is critically examined, and should it be uneven it is thought a good omen. The grain is then thrown in spoonfuls into a neighboring stream, and if three wishes are asked for they are always said to be granted.

Monroe Heaver Allows But Two Singles During Fielding Fest—Cards Defeated Two to Nothing.

Along came Monroe, Sunday afternoon and defeated the Janesville Cardinals by the count of two to nothing at the Association Park grounds, simply because the Cardinals failed to hit the ball. Franks, the Precept of State pitcher, held the Cardinals down to two singles and the Janesville men eventually might as well have left their war clubs at home as far as hitting was concerned.

The exhibition was good, despite the muddy grounds which slowed up the fielding and probably was the blame for many of the Cardinals' failures to hit the ball, dropping dead on infield grounds—an easy play for the basemen. Twelve Cardinal plays, which were not matter to the infield, Franks, Monroe pitcher, obtained five weak efforts at hits from the mound. The Cardinals should have won that game hands down. They were presented gratis and without effort two good chances to win when Franks transported fived passed in two innings, the "little ole hit" was not forthcoming. It appears that no matter how high a player's sticking out, age is, out of Cardinals uniform, the moment he dons the suit he is possessed with a link, that makes him a Madison leaguer was obtained for his hitting powers and although he came up twice with runners on the bases he did not connect safely with those hypotic drifters of Franks.

Fuck! Hurlis Good.
Bob Fucik hurled great ball for the Cardinals, allowing but six hits, fanning nine and walking but three. One bad inning, the seventh, put the game on the cabbage to travel the Milwaukee road to Green county. In the session Weber went out on a single and Shaylin, Monroe's most dangerous hitter connected for a home run. The Pirate catcher, showed the tugboat spirit and landed a double which landed Shaylin on third. Cawkins let go a low ball and he was unable to flag the pit in the mud before Shaylin galloped home and slid safe through Fucik. The next batter flied out and to make it worse, Williams singled and brought the Pirate runner from his resting place at third home. These two tags were great sufficiency and if the truth be told were just two too many.

This Franks worked on the mound like a madman, but there the resemblance ended. For Franks could pitch ball. He mixed a splitter with a deceptive slow-one and would hook across a semi-fast ball that had the Cardinals baffled.

In the first game looked easy for the Cardinals when Fucik retired Monroe after two had hit safely. Lee first to bat for the Cards, kicked Franks into giving him a pitch. Cornell sacrificed and Cawkins took advantage of Franks' wildness for another free ticket to first. This was as far as the Cards got, however, for Lampert fowled out and Morrissey dumped a roller down second that would have been a crime to boot.

Both hurlers worked good for the next five innings. Fucik was hindered off and the Cardinals infield defense was perfect. In the eighth Lampert, who had been giving him a short fly from Robb with one hand back on second.

The Lucky Seventh.
In the seventh the Pirates hoisted the skull and crossbones, proceeded down the alley and banged out three hits that meant victory. The Cardinals came to bat with plenty of the ball but as pound the stitches off the horsehide was perfectly true when the exhibition was over. In the seventh rally hopes were giving a little stimulant, when Frank's developed an inability to locate the plate. Fucik walked and with two down the next two batters, Yost and Berger, also got the walking fever. Had they kept it up, the outcome might have been sweeter, but as luck would have it, Cornell bounced off a fly to third with the bases crammed with walking batsmen.

Again in the eighth Lampert did manage to lay the hickory on the ball safely and got around to third on passed balls committed by Yost. Fucik walked again but the stuff was off when he attempted to steal second and was mired in the mud, powerless to move as Lampert was going home. Everybody died peacefully in the ninth.

Diamond Gleanings.
Wanted: Some one who can hit the ball. Must be able to bat four hundred in Cardinal uniform. Apply Manager George Caldwell.
Next comes the Beloit Fairies and without some stickers are imported, there does not seem much hopes in gaining revenge for that 3 to 1 game a week ago.

At least three new players will be on the nine next Sunday. A new first sacker and one who can belt the ball, a new pitcher, who is probably be Bradigan, and a new outfielder and possibly a new third sacker. Yost who played first Sunday was never known to get a hit but is a great fielder. Lee played a scrappy game at third yesterday and will be seen at this position in later games. Let him show some sticking ability and he can own the whole infield.

Franks walked Yost twice. Any pitcher that could not put that ball over to a six footer like the Cardinals first sacker, sure must have been short on short. Pitching to Yost and then "Shorty" Lee must have had a Muir and Jeff effect on the Monroe hurler for he walked them both twice.

Lee staged a quick play when he caught Robb at third by diving for him. On a play at first by Cornell Robb attempted to go to third when Lee was throwing the ball across. The return came fast and the Monroe man was out by about "scoot" feet. At that he kicked that Lee failed to touch him but had the diminutive sacker put the ball on him harder, he would have broken his ribs.

Kohler was set picking for Fucik, for he fanned him three times. In the fourth inning the Monroe batter never moved his hindleg from his shoulder during the time six balls were thrown, three at and three over the pan.

Weber at third looked to be the strongest man on the Pirate squad even if he located an easy one, he could field, was fast and whipped the pellet across fast and sure.

Had the skies been less threatening a far bigger crowd would have been out for the pastime.

It was folly to try base stealing yesterday. Several Monroe men attempted to sneak down the pike and were caught by a wide margin by Cawkins. There was no chance to slide and the going was bad.

One Monograph Lost to Literature. "The other day," said Berry M. Aull, Chigebite's popular undertaker, "I sat down to write a monograph on the Futility of Everything. It was a great thought—it thrilled me. But mine is a sternly logical mind. The more the truth of my great theme came home to me, the more clear it became that I would have to give up writing the monograph. For writing also is futile."—Kansas City Star.
